WALTER LEWIS ON STAND FOR SEVEN HOURS

Court Warns Defense of Too Much Time in Cross-examination of Man

WARD IS SUMMONED

Deputy Sheriff on Stand As Court is Out for Noon

An atmosphere charged with tension prevailed in Pickaway-co's common pleas court room today where Horace Van Horn, 55, Darby-twp trustee, is on trial for his life for the alleged murder of his brother-in-law by marriage, William Lewis.

Through Wednesday afternoon and until 9:50 a. m. Thursday Walter Lewis, son of the deceased man, and the state's star witness, occupied the stand, the greater part of the time on cross-examination by I. F. Snyder, defense attorney. It was shortly after the noon recess Wednesday that Snyder took charge of Lewis and after the morning session began Judge Frank M. Clevenger cautioned Snyder that he was taking too much time on cross-examination.

ON SEVEN HOURS At 9:50 Snyder completed his questioning and the younger Lewis was removed from the stand after seven hours continuous questioning. He showed signs of the long seige and when he left the stand was in an apparent nervous condition.

As court adjourned for the noon recess John G. Ward, Jr., deputy sheriff when the murder is alleged to have taken place, was on the stand undergoing cross-examination by C. A. Leist, defense attorney. Ward's testimony was, that the office had received a call on Sunday evening and that he and Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell who was to take the stand during the afternoon, went to investigate. He reported arresting Van Horn and placing him in jail here. He testified that the tracks of the automobile could be seen in the rye field and when questioned by State's Attorney T. A. Renick told that one set of tracks could be seen going into the soft ground of the field and one set coming off with tracks in the field showing that the car had circled.

Ward told of taking Van Horn into custody and that when he entered the Van Horn home, he was greeted, "Hello Doggy, I've been expecting you all day." Previous to Ward, C. E. Thacker of Darby-twp testified for the state. He said that he with Mr. Hamilton, young Lewis' father-in-law, went to the Lewis home and found the elder Lewis lying in the field. He testified that an empty bottle was found in his pocket and that he was placed in an automobile and taken to a Columbus hospital. He testified that he saw automobile tracks in the rye field that the night was a moonlight one and that everything was plainly visible.

William Hamilton was then put on the stand. He told about the same story as Thacker, of finding the body in the field and taking it to the automobile. Ward then followed Hamilton.

Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell who went with Ward on the first call was to follow the former deputy to the stand with other state witnesses following him.

The courtroom was filled with every seat available taken before the trial started. No one was permitted to stand in the courtroom aisles and perfect order prevailed.

DEMOCRATS MEET TODAY

Fear of Southern Drys Relieved; Prohibition Is Out Says Raskob.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—John J. Raskob, the anti-prohibition chairman of the Democratic national committee, relieved the fears of the southern drys today that he had any deep or dark designs to force it to go on record on the wet-and-dry issue.

At the same time, however, he made it clear that he is going to propose a set of resolutions for the members of the national committee to ponder over, and perhaps at some future time to recommend to the national convention sixteen months hence. Presumably, one of these proposals will be that the party take a militant stand against prohibition.

"But I hope," said Chairman Raskob, with a slight smile, "that there will be no attempt to force action at this meeting." There was loud applause from the southern drys, who were represented in force at the meeting by congressmen and senators sitting on the sidelines.

It was never contemplated, Chairman Raskob added, that the present meeting of the national committee would take any positive action with regard to party policy—that being, the function of the national convention which adopts a platform.

Sherman Lowery, this city, arrested on a charge of selling intoxicating liquor to Jennie Brown, was arraigned, pleaded not guilty and bond was fixed at $500, which he failed to secure. He was committed to the county jail.

STATE JOB UNDER FIRE

Senate Committee Would Refuse Governor Right To Name Educator.

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 5.—A reform bloc in Ohio's legislature today dropped into the senate's lap the notice of endorsement by one of its own committees of a bill to forever deny the governor of the state the right to appoint the state director of education.

Despite threatened opposition, the bloc, which also eventually hopes to remove the state welfare director and the state director of industrial relations from the governor's cabinet, proceeded today to try to press the bill through both houses.

Abolition of the present system of a governor-appointed educator director is contained in the Lowery bill to set up a state board of education. The measure was approved and recommended for passage in the education committee, which incidentally, is headed by Sen. J. G. Lowery (R) of New Concord the bill's author.

Mal Daugherty Is Found Guilty

Tragedy Heroine

WASHINGTON, C. H. O., March 5.—Facing a prison sentence of from one to 30 years and a fine of $10,000 on each of five counts of an indictment charging fraud in connection with the collapse of the Ohio State Bank, Mal S. Daugherty, brother of the former attorney general Harry M. Daugherty, today was at liberty under $40,000 bond pending a hearing for a new trial.

The former president of the defunct institution, who stepped into the public limelight in 1923 during the investigation of the famous Teapot Dome Oil lease scandal, was convicted late yesterday by a jury composed of fellow Fayette county men who had for more than 20 years looked to him as their political and financial leader.

GET CASE AT NOON

Given the case at noon yesterday after the defense attorneys waived their closing arguments, the jury deliberated for slightly more than four hours. They returned with a verdict but it was refused by Judge Charles S. Bell, who declared it was erroneous in wording.

Once again the jury went into conference and a half hour later emerged to ask wherein the error lay. The judge cited the Ohio law to inform the jury he could not instruct it further than its written charge. And again the jury went in conference, returning shortly before six p. m. with the corrected verdict.

The error in the jury's first verdict had been in their failure to find the defendant guilty of "offenses." The first verdict had found Daugherty guilty, merely "of the offense"—singular instead of plural.

The five counts of which Daugherty was found guilty were: abstraction of funds, misapplication of the bank's credit, falsification of entries, an attempt to deceive a state bank examiner and the making of an invalid loan.

ACCEPTS VERDICT

Daugherty accepted the verdict of the jurors stoically. Neither he nor his attorneys had any statement to make. They retired to Daugherty's home immediately after receiving the juror's decision.

Sentencing of Daugherty was deferred until the court acts on a motion for a new trial, which defense attorneys announced would be filed within a few days.

The Ohio State Bank failed on May 12, 1930. Investigation was started into the bank's collapse last fall after Daugherty was declared bankrupt and unable to meet his obligations. A grand jury returned 16 indictments, but the former banker was tried on only one.

The conviction of Daugherty occurred just a week after the death of his aged mother from pneumonia.

JUDGE HOUGH'S DECISION BASIS OF MOVE HERE

City Attorney Refuses to Wait for Gas Co. Move, Files Ordinance

HAS FIRST READING

Several Steps Open in Bringing Rate Revision

City attorney, Paul Adkins, introduced an ordinance before city council Wednesday evening regulating the price of natural gas for the city, furnished by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. The ordinance was given its first reading and referred to a committee of the whole with E. S. Neuding as chairman.

The proposed schedule is one on which Federal Judge Benson W. Hough has ruled in favor of Columbus in its fight against higher fuel gas rates.

ADKINS' SCHEDULE

Following is the schedule as drawn in Adkins' ordinance:

75 cents for the first 500 cubic feet or less used through each meter each month from which there is no discount.

51 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for all over 500 cubic feet subject to a discount of 3 cents per 1,000 cubic feet if paid within 10 days after the bill has been received.

A section of the ordinance provides that it will be in force from and after the earliest date allowed by law. The ordinance would provide for the next five years service in the city.

Adkins said that, however, as the gas company has failed to take any action on its rate here which expires on March 27, he thought it time that council take some kind of action on setting a rate rather than waiting for the gas company to lay its cards on the table. The gas company made several trips to Ashville, Adkins said, and finally had a rate passed while they have failed to send representatives to the council here to even attempt to pass an ordinance.

What action will now be taken by the gas company is a matter for conjecture. It was intended, according to George Foerst, local manager, to propose the same rate that Ashville council accepted. That was that the same rate now in effect would be used for the next two years. A new rate would go into effect after 1933 for 1933, 1934 and 1935.

That rate follows: 20 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet; 7 cents per cubic feet for the next 1500 cubic feet; 6 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 3000 cubic feet; 5 1/2 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 100,000 cubic feet; 5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 300,000 cubic feet. The minimum bill according to this schedule would be $1.

COURSES OPEN

If the gas company refuses to operate under this ordinance if it is passed by council, it is probable the city's case will follow that of many other Ohio cities into the state utilities commission for ruling. If that takes as long as the Citizens' Telephone rate case, four years next month, the expense would be a considerable sum.

Then, too, it is possible the gas company will meet with council for the purpose of completing a compromise. If the company makes a reasonable offer to the council it is possible some agreement can be reached. Residents of the city should not take it for granted that after the present rate expires they will obtain gas at the price set out in this ordinance.

BOMB FAST P. R. R. TRAIN

Engine Refuses to Leave Rails—Two Other Attempts of Sabotage Discovered.

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 5.—Territory traversed by the Trenton-Stroudsburg branch of the Pennsylvania railroad was combed by state and railroad police today following a night of panic on the line during which three attempts were made to derail passenger trains.

Bandits were believed responsible for the attempts. The first occurred when an express train, loaded with passengers, was bombarded between Stocktown and Lambertville, N. J. The train teetered crazily on the tracks but did not leave the rails. The engine and baggage cars were damaged. Dynamite sticks apparently had been attached to the tracks. They exploded as the heavy wheels passed over the rails.

Two hours later, a large stone was found lying across the tracks a half mile from the scene of the attempted dynamite derailment. Railroad officials said the stone was sufficiently large to have derailed a train.

Soon thereafter, track inspectors came upon another sabotage instance, a scant quarter mile away. An attempt had been made to bait open a locked switchbox with the evident intention of diverting onrushing trains onto a siding where several freight cars had been hauled. Had the attempt succeeded, the passenger train would have hurled itself into the heavy freight cars, officials said.

THREE KILLED IN BOX CAR BLAZE

CICERO, Ill., March 5.—Three persons were burned to death and another narrowly escaped the same fate today when fire swept a box car home in the colony of railroad track laborers here.

Three fire companies were called out to keep the flames from spreading to about 40 other box cars being used as dwellings.

Only one inhabitant of the car escaped. She is Mrs. Trinidad Espinosa, who dived through a window. The dead are Anselmo Espinosa, 16, his daughter, Angelita, 16, and Jesus Barnosora, 30, a boarder at the little home.

BAER REPORTS

Fire Inspector J. S. Baer reported a number of inspections between Feb. 6 and Feb. 23 in which 13 persons were ordered to repair chimneys and one told to clean out his cellar.

Name Educator.

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 5.—A reform bloc in Ohio's legislature today dropped into the senate's lap the notice of endorsement by one of its own committees of a bill to forever deny the governor of the state the right to appoint the state director of education.

Despite threatened opposition, the bloc, which also eventually hopes to remove the state welfare director and the state director of industrial relations from the governor's cabinet, proceeded today to try to press the bill through both houses.

Abolition of the present system of a governor-appointed education director is contained in the Lowery bill to set up a state board of education. The measure was approved and recommended for passage in the education committee, which, incidentally, is headed by Sen. J. G. Lowery (R) of New Concord, the bill's author.

Mal Daugherty Is Found Guilty

WASHINGTON, C. H. O., March 5.—Facing a prison sentence of from one to 30 years and a fine of $10,000 on each of five counts of an indictment charging fraud in connection with the collapse of the Ohio State Bank, Mal S. Daugherty, brother of the former attorney general Harry M. Daugherty, today was at liberty under $40,000 bond pending a hearing for a new trial.

The former president of the defunct institution, who stepped into the public limelight in 1923 during the investigation of the famous Teapot Dome Oil lease scandal, was convicted late yesterday by a jury composed of fellow Fayette county men who had for more than 20 years looked to him as their political and financial leader.

GET CASE AT NOON

Given the case at noon yesterday after the defense attorneys waived their closing arguments, the jury deliberated for slightly more than four hours. They returned with a verdict but it was refused by Judge Charles S. Bell, who declared it was erroneous in wording.

Once again the jury went into conference and a half hour later emerged to ask wherein the error lay. The Judge cited the Ohio law to inform the jury he could not instruct it further than his written charge. And again the jury went in conference, returning shortly before six p. m. with the corrected verdict.

The error in the jury's first verdict had been in their failure to find the defendant guilty of "offenses." The first verdict had found Daugherty guilty merely "of the offense"—singular instead of plural.

The five counts of which Daugherty was found guilty were: abstraction of funds, misapplication of the bank's credit, falsification of entries, an attempt to deceive a state bank examiner and the making of an invalid loan.

ACCEPTS VERDICT

Daugherty accepted the verdict of the jurors stoically. Neither he nor his attorneys had any statement to make. They retired to Daugherty's home immediately after receiving the juror's decision.

Sentencing of Daugherty was deferred until the court acts on a motion for a new trial, which defense attorneys announced would be filed within a few days.

The Ohio State Bank failed on May 12, 1930. Investigation was started into the bank's collapse last fall after Daugherty was declared bankrupt and unable to meet his obligations. A grand jury returned 16 indictments, but the former banker was tried on only one.

The conviction of Daugherty occurred just a week after the death of his aged mother from pneumonia.

Only three sophomores, Ulm, Frederick Becker of Cincinnati, and John Mason of Cleveland, made straight "A" for the first half-year term.

Mrs. Sarah Clare Gammons, South Shore, Mass., society matron (above), plunged into the icy waters of Hunter's Pond, at North Scituate, Mass., and rescued a four-year-old child, but failed to save her own adopted son, Charles, three years old. Both children broke through the thin ice.

BOMB FAST P. R. R. TRAIN

Engine Refuses to Leave Rails
—Two Other Attempts of Sabotage Discovered.

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 5.—Territory traversed by the Trenton-Stroudsburg branch of the Pennsylvania railroad was combed by state and railroad police today following a night of panic on the line during which three attempts were made to derail passenger trains.

Bandits were believed responsible for the attempts. The first occurred when an express train, loaded with passengers, was bombarded between Stockton and Lambertville, N. J. The train teetered crazily on the tracks but did not leave the rails. The engine and baggage cars were damaged. Dynamite sticks apparently had been attached to the tracks. They exploded as the heavy wheels passed over the rails.

Two hours later, a large stone was found lying across the tracks a half mile from the scene of the attempted dynamite derailment. Railroad officials said the stone was sufficiently large to have derailed a train.

Soon thereafter, track inspectors came upon another sabotage instance, a scant quarter mile away. An attempt had been made to batter open a locked switchbox with the evident intention of diverting onrushing trains onto a siding where several freight cars had been hauled. Had the attempt succeeded, the passenger train would have hurled itself into the heavy freight cars, officials said.

COURSES OPEN

If the gas company refuses to operate under this ordinance if it is passed by council, it is probable the city's case will follow that of many other Ohio cities into the state utilities commission for ruling. If that takes as long as the Citizens' Telephone rate case, four years next month, the expense would be a considerable sum.

Then, too, it is possible the gas company will meet with council for the purpose of completing a compromise. If the company makes a reasonable offer to the council it is possible some agreement can be reached. Residents of the city should not take it for granted that after the present rate expires they will obtain gas at the price set out in this ordinance.

THREE KILLED IN BOX CAR BLAZE

CICERO, Ill., March 5.—Three persons were burned to death and another narrowly escaped the same fate today when fire swept a box car home in the colony of railroad track laborers here.

Three fire companies were called out to keep the flames from spreading to about 40 other box cars being used as dwellings. Only one inhabitant of the car escaped. She is Mrs. Trinidad Espinosa, who dived through a window.

The dead are Anselmo Espinosa, 46, his daughter, Angenila, 16, and Jesus Barnosora, 30, a boarder at the little home.

BAER REPORTS

Fire Inspector J. S. Baer reported a number of inspections between Feb. 6 and Feb. 23 in which 13 persons were ordered to repair chimneys and one told to clean out his cellar.

JUDGE HOUGH'S DECISION BASIS OF MOVE HERE

City Attorney Refuses to Wait for Gas Co. Move,
Files Ordinance

HAS FIRST READING

Several Steps Open in Bringing Rate Revision

City attorney, Paul Adkins, introduced an ordinance before city council Wednesday evening regulating the price of natural gas for the city, furnished by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. The ordinance was given its first reading and referred to a committee of the whole with E. S. Neuding as chairman.

The proposed schedule is one on which Federal Judge Benson W. Hough has ruled in favor of Columbus in its fight against higher fuel gas rates.

ADKINS' SCHEDULE

Following is the schedule as drawn in Adkins' ordinance:
75 cents for the first 500 cubic feet or less used through each meter each month from which there is no discount.

51 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for all over 500 cubic feet subject to a discount of 3 cents per 1,000 cubic feet if paid within 10 days after the bill has been received.

A section of the ordinance provides that it will be in force from and after the earliest date allowed by law. The ordinance would provide for the next five years service in this city.

Adkins said that inasmuch as the gas company has failed to take any action on its rate here which expires on March 27, he thought it time that council take some kind of action on setting a rate rather than waiting for the gas company to lay its cards on the table. The gas company made several trips to Ashville, Adkins said, and finally had a rate passed while they have failed to send representatives to the council here to even attempt to pass an ordinance.

What action will now be taken by the gas company is a matter for conjecture. It was intended, according to George Foerst, local manager, to propose the same rate that Ashville council accepted. That was that the same rate now in effect would be used for the next two years. A new rate would go into effect after 1932 for 1933, 1934 and 1935.

That rate follows: 20 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet; 7 cents per cubic feet for the next 1500 cubic feet; 6 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 3000 cubic feet; 5 1/2 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 195,000 cubic feet; 5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 200,000 cubic feet. The minimum bill according to this schedule would be $1.

Then, too, it is possible the gas company will meet with council for the purpose of completing a compromise. If the company makes a reasonable offer to the council it is possible some agreement can be reached. Residents of the city should not take it for granted that after the present rate expires they will obtain gas at the price set out in this ordinance.

Big Ten Fights Sports Control

CHICAGO, March 5.—An announcement that a meeting of the Big Ten conference university presidents has been called was interpreted today as definite evidence of an impending battle between the North Central association and the Big Ten over the issue of athletic control in the latter group.

At the call of President Walter D. Scott of Northwestern University, presidents of the Big Ten universities will convene here within the next two weeks as part of a committee of 31 to discuss the reported efforts of the North Central group to add jurisdiction of athletic affairs to its present powers.

This attempt is violently resented by all ten universities in the middle-west conference.

CAN EPILEPSY CURED?

Remarkable Booklet Reveals Opinions of Leading Physicians

New York, N. Y. The recent announcement of the publication of a booklet containing the medical opinions of famous doctors on the subject "CAN EPILEPSY BE CURED?" has met with great interest throughout the country. Sufferers everywhere have welcomed the booklet with enthusiasm. It is reported to be the last word on the subject of this type, containing a great deal of information and advice on the subject.

Every sufferer from this ailment should read this booklet. Interested parties can get a free copy of this booklet by writing direct to the Educational Division, 509 Fifth Ave., Desk 332—New York City—adv.

The committee called by President Scott will comprise the presidents, athletic directors and faculty representatives of all ten institutions together with Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten athletic commissioner.

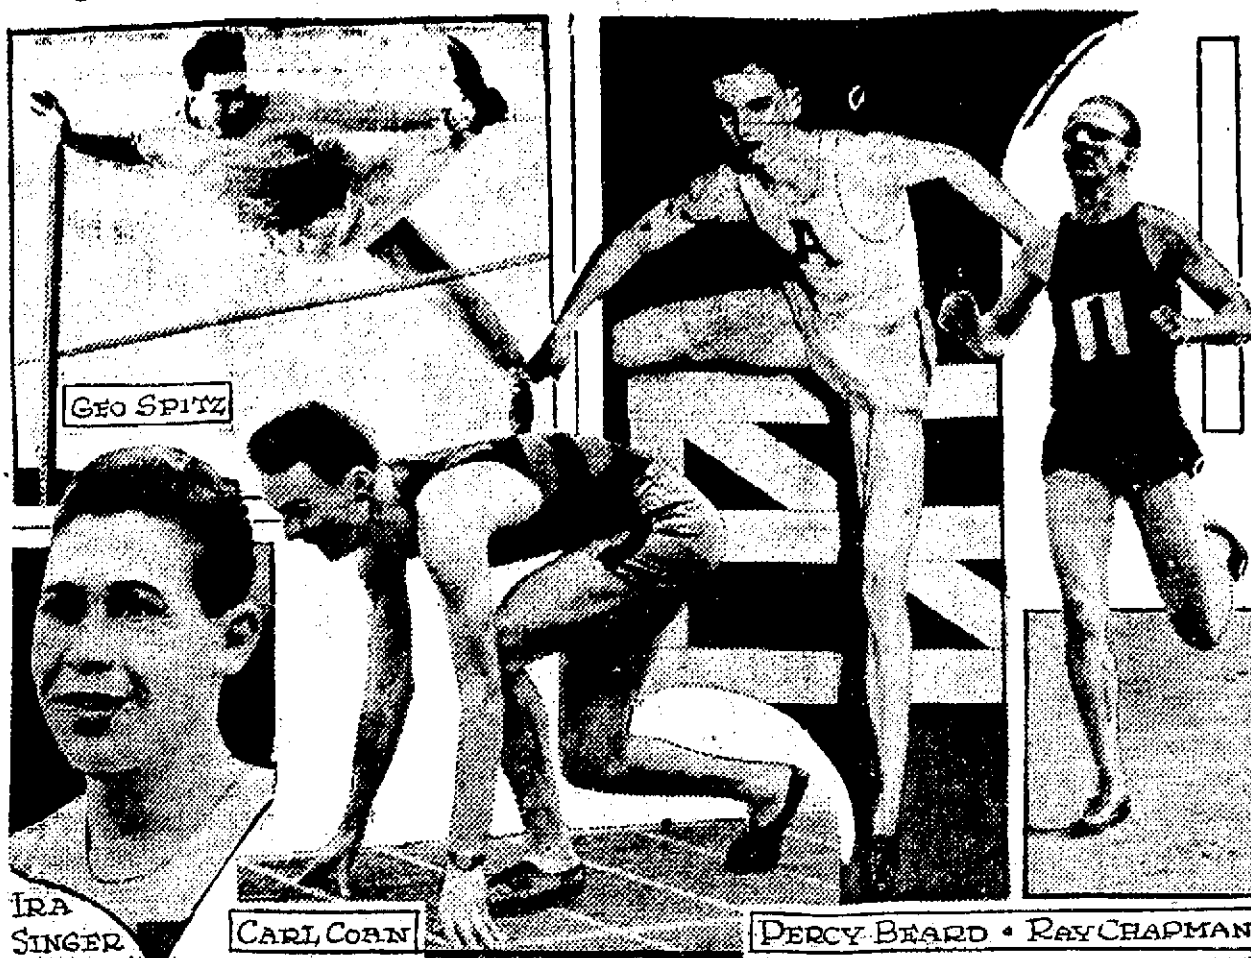

The North Central conference, composed of nearly every university and college between the Alleghenies and Rockies, has recently assumed other than scholastic powers. It is charged, one of them being the order that universities should not sponsor intercollegiate track meets and basketball tournaments.

An investigation conducted by the North Central conference at five Big Ten schools, Chicago, Northwestern, Minnesota, Ohio State and Illinois, apparently brought the feeling to a head. The investigating committee headed by Prof. C. W. Savage of Oberlin recently spent six days at Northwestern examining athletic department files.

Prof. O. F. Long, chairman of the Northwestern faculty committee on athletics, had the following to say: "It is most desirable that the North Central association and the intercollegiate conference should continue to hold their respective positions of leadership. Northwestern University believes that the intercollegiate conference should at this time refuse to surrender any of its prerogatives to the North Central association."

New Stars in Athletic Constellation

IRA SINGER

CARL COAN

PERCY BEARD • RAY CHAPMAN

Uncle Sam will have plenty of track and field material for the 1932 Olympics, at Los Angeles, judging from the performances of some of the newer stars competing in the indoor meets this winter. There is Percy Beard, of Alabama Polytechnic, who broke the world's indoor record for the 70-yard hurdles by doing the distance in 8.05 seconds at the National A. A. U. meet. Carl Coan, U. of P.'s great miler, has created a sensation on each appearance. Another new record holder is young George Spitz, of New York University, who set the mark at 6 feet, 7 1/2 inches in the high jump event at the Millrose games in New York. Ira Singer, also of N. Y. U., is a worthy team mate. Judging from his indoor performances he will be one of the sprint sensations during the outdoor season. Singer has several times done the hundred in 9.4-5 seconds. Ray Chapman, Bates' great half-miler, is another who has been setting a swift pace for the indoor boys. With this array of youthful talent, the passing of some of the old standbys should not worry Uncle Sam very much.

Dodgers Most Improved Club

NEW YORK, March 5.—Brooklyn, Chicago and Pittsburgh appear to be the most improved clubs in the National league for the 1931 campaign.

Four factors featured the collapse of the Brooklyn team last year—a gap in the infield defense at second base, lack of a hard-hitting regular in left field, poor team batting in the stretch drive, and absence of a competent catcher to help out Al Lopez, the sensational Cuban backstop who was overworked in the latter stages of the race.

"Lumbago" Lombardi, the big catcher obtained from Oakland, should prove to be a capable understudy for Lopez. Lombardi is no mercury on the base paths, but wields a wicked bludgeon and performs acceptably behind the bat.

Lefty O'Doul and Fresco Thompson, obtained from the Phillies, should take care of the other three weaknesses that handicapped the Robins last year. Thompson had an off season last year but has taken a new lease on life at training camp. He is normally a .300 hitter and a good second baseman. O'Doul is no Gazelle in the outfield but his .382 batting average makes Brooklyn the hottest hitting club in the league, on paper at least.

Weakness at second base last season. If Thompson plugs that hole, he won't have to hit .300 to earn his pay.

Rogers Hornsby has strengthened the pitching staff of the Cubs enormously by acquiring three experienced hurlers from other National league clubs. They are Bob Smith, the dependable right-hander who starred for years with the Boston Braves; Jackie May, the portly southpaw obtained from Cincinnati; and Lester Sweetland. The latter showed flashes of brilliance with the Phillies but became discouraged by the constant bombardments at Baker Bowl.

When you consider that the Cubs lost the pennant last season by only two games, it is easy to see that the acquisition of this trio is going to make the Cubs a mighty powerful contender in the 1931 campaign.

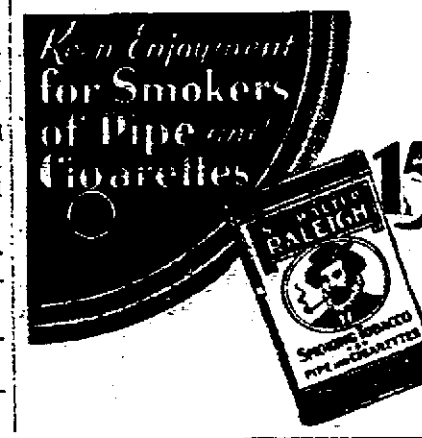

Pittsburgh reinforced its infield defense by obtaining Tommy Thevenow from the Phillies and Bill Regan from the Boston Red Sox. Regan probably will play second with Grantham alternating with Gus Suhr at first. Thevenow will be steadier at shortstop than was the erratic Dick Sartell.

OHIO BOASTS GOOD RECORD

Strong Defense Limits Opponents to Average of 24 Points Per Contest.

ATHENS, March 5.—A fine defensive record was registered by the Ohio University Bobcat basketball team as it won the Buckeye conference cage title during the 1930-31 season.

Playing a seventeen game schedule, the Bobcats held opponents to an average of 24 points a game. The highest total run up against Coach Butch Grover's quintet was by Cornell in the second game of the season. The eastern team tilted 38 points.

The Bobcats won 13 games of the 17 played ending the year with a winning streak of 10 straight games. After dropping four of the first seven games played, one of which was a two overtime period fracas to Denison, the Bobcats began to win regularly and ended with a record equalled by only one other Ohio University team in 1921 when the Bobcats won the title of the Ohio conference with 11 wins and one loss.

To win the Buckeye cage title this year, Ohio staged a game uphill fight. They lost their first two conference tilts to Ohio Wesleyan and Denison then won their last six league frays to win the toga with a full game lead over the nearest rival, Ohio Wesleyan.

The record for the year is: Ohio 36, Bliss 20; Ohio 33, Cornell 31; Ohio 26, Depauw 38; Ohio 31, Broadus 22; Ohio 17, Marietta 19; Ohio 20, Ohio Wesleyan 26; Ohio 27, Denison 35; Ohio 21, Miami 19; Ohio 28, Muskingum 26; Ohio 42, Marshall 37; Ohio 28, Cincinnati 22; Ohio 28, Marietta 26; Ohio 30, Ohio Wesleyan 28; Ohio 23, Miami 18; Ohio 32, Cincinnati 14; Ohio 40, Muskingum 32; Ohio 23; Ohio 28, Denison 17.

OHIO BOASTS GOOD RECORD

Strong Defense Limits Opponents to Average of 24 Points Per Contest.

ATHENS, March 5.—A fine defensive record was registered by the Ohio University Bobcat basketball team as it won the Buckeye conference cage title during the 1930-31 season.

Playing a seventeen game schedule, the Bobcats held opponents to an average of 24 points a game. The highest total run up against Coach Butch Grover's quintet was by Cornell in the second game of the season. The eastern team tallied 35 points.

The Bobcats won 13 games of the 17 played ending the year with a winning streak of 10 straight games. After dropping four of the first seven games played, one of which was a two overtime period fracas to Denison, the

REPORT FINDS CORRUPTION AMONG ILLINOIS OFFICERS

WASHINGTON — Widespread corruption among public officials in Illinois was found by the Wickham commission investigators sent to that state, according to the additional data covering five states sent to the senate in the closing hours of the session.

In New York they found three times as many Volstead law violations as in any other state in the union.

The states covered in the additional evidence were, besides Illinois and New York, New Jersey, Louisiana and Colorado.

Prohibition was declared to be satisfactorily enforced in Colorado but New Jersey was found to be very wet.

Declaring Illinois "dripping wet," Guy L. Nichols, (an assumed name) the commission's expert, found, however, a more menacing aspect of the situation was the crime and corruption in Chicago.

MENACING PROBLEMS

"A more menacing problem," he said, "is that of clearing the city of graft, political intrigue, bootlegging and last but not least by any means, racketeering and bootlegging are so interwoven in organized crime that one is inseparable from the other."

"Racketeering in the metropolitan area of Chicago today is affecting the citizens in a new way through the pocketbook. During the last six years, a system of criminal exploitation, founded on extortion and dominated by gangsters, has thrived with the aid of illicit alcohol industry, until its properties are almost unbelievable."

This system of criminal exploitation exacts a high tribute. It costs the ordinary citizen money and few realize how or where the system works."

The report cited confessions of officials and criminals to support its conclusions, and declared the only hope for the future lay in education and persuasion.

"Nichols" listed 330 names of gangsters, among them Al Capone, referred to as "Alphonse Capone, alias Al Brown, alias Scarface, vice, gambling, booze and beer."

Capone's activities were not gone into at length, but considerable attention was paid to those described as members of "The Capone outfit."

The investigator found that an "entire second floor (of an unnamed building) of some fifty rooms is occupied by the Capone outfit," adding that "guards are stationed on this floor and no one has access thereto unless his identity is satisfactory," the report then said:

"Lieut. Blah, of the state attorneys office, in April 1930, your investigator is reliably informed, made a raid and discovered on the second floor a large conference room, No. 230, with a long table, chairs reinforced with armor-plated backs."

"Large quantities of poison-dipped bullets, but no guns nor records were found. Neither were any of the Capone outfit about. There was strong indication of a 'tip off.'"

In and around New York City prohibition violations were found by the investigator sent there, to be so flagrant that 98 percent of all criminal prosecutions were for offenses involving prohibition.

Palmer Canfield, former legal supervisor of the prohibition bureau, prepared the New York report. He said the federal judicial machinery was nearly "swamped" in New York City by "bartenders in speakeasies, waiters in night clubs, cabarets and co-called restaurants," adding that 90 per cent of those arrested were allowed to plead guilty and pay fines.

"This 'cafeteria court' has been held once a week, at which time about 200 defendants plead guilty," Canfield said. He added that if all had demanded jury trials there would not be enough federal judges in the district to handle the cases.

Canfield found however, in cooperation of state officials with the federal prohibition forces, a "significant and hopeful factor."

Canfield, who also took in New Jersey, declared the liquor interests there were so powerful as "to partly enslave" the political forces. He declared that it would take ten years to clear the political situation so that prohibition might be enforced.

FAVOR AUSTIN IN MAINE VOTE

MONTPELIER, Vt.—Warren R. Austin of Burlington will be the Republican candidate for United States senator opposing Stephen Driscoll, Democrat, in an election later this month. Austin defeated Senator Frank C. Partridge by 8,000 votes in the primary election yesterday.

Nomination is tantamount to election as Vermont is overwhelmingly Republican.

The vote was Austin 43,381, Partridge, 35,424.

Austin is president of a marble company.

BILLION $ SOLONS QUIT

WASHINGTON—The first peacetime "five billion dollar session" completed its fiscal program shortly before midnight with approval of the second deficiency bill carrying $5,000,000 to run the government next year.

In the final conference, a $10,000,000 appropriation to start work on Cove Creek dam was stricken out because the senate upheld the Muscle Shoals veto. A fund of $5,000,000 for veterans bureau hospitals also was removed pending final agreement on an authorization bill as has $1,000,000 for maternity and infancy work.

The house, in finally acting on the bill, approved $5,000,000 for the reclamation fund to continue on projects in the west.

The bill carries $18,000,000 for construction of federal buildings and postoffices, more than $23,000,000 to meet deficiencies in the veterans bureau, $800,000 for government buildings on Governor's Island, Alameda, Calif.; $1,900,000 to complete the Northeastern Federal prison, $2,200,000 for a dirigible base at Sunnyvale, Calif.; $1,196,000 for air corps construction at Alameda, Calif. and Marin-co, California.

JANITOR IS HELD AT ELLIS ISLAND

NEW YORK—Charged with being a member of an "organization advocating overthrow of the government by force and violence," August Yokinen, janitor at a Finnish worker's club, was held at Ellis Island today. An effort will be made to deport him.

Yokinen was ejected from the Communist party last Sunday in the first communist trial in this country for race prejudice.

Government officials declined to make public details of charges against the janitor.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY LEADERS DRIFT INTO WASHINGTON, D. C.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4.—Democratic atmosphere was loaded with tenseness and suspicion today as party leaders began to drift into the capital for Thursday's meeting of the Democratic National committee—the first party rally of any consequence since the 1928 campaign.

Under the circumstances, it is considered extremely doubtful if any effort will be made to commit the National committee to any anti-prohibition declaration, although such a commitment is reported to be very near the heart of chairman John J. Raskob.

Chairman Raskob has never admitted any intention of seeking to put the National committee on record against prohibition. Neither has he denied it. But in the silence and the conflicting rumors there has developed an opposition to such a project that is so widespread and so bitter that it seemed today that if he ever had such an intention it will have to be abandoned.

BLUE LAW IS NEAR DISCARD

COLUMBUS, O., March 5.—Ohio's antiquated blue law barring Sunday movies, already openly violated in 71 counties, today was apparently about to be tossed into the legislative ash-heap.

Hearing no objection against the Marshall bill giving Sunday movies the same status as Sunday baseball at a hearing last night, the state senate judiciary committee today was prepared to approve the measure and recommends its passage.

Anticipated ministerial association opposition from New Philadelphia, Portsmouth and other cities which have been the scenes of recent blue-law fights having failed to appear, supporters of the bill declared they were confident of its adoption in both houses. Not a single protest was placed against the Marshall bill last night.

A dozen Belmont-co persons appeared, however, to complain that the present law robs them of Sunday movie money, which Ohioans spend across the border in West Virginia. Wheeling, W. Va., they said, gets Ohio money that ought to remain in Martins Ferry and Bellaire.

Postmaster Hayward Long, A. J. Fallen, Charles Mays and William Campbell, Martins Ferry merchants and manufacturers, urged the committee to take favorable action on the bill.

"Without Sunday movies our boys will sneak off into barns to play poker or drink bad liquor," Judge J. C. Nichols of St. Clairsville, for 12 years, a juvenile court judge, told the committee.

"It is far, far better," he said, "to have our boys and girls going to movies at home than to allow them to be running around over the hills of Belmont-co somewhere."

The present law, Delaware persons advised the committee, "results in an exodus from our city every Sunday toward either Marion or Columbus, or somewhere where our people can go to movies."

Speakers said the present law empties Delaware every Sunday, lining the highways outside the city with Ohio Wesleyan students "thumbing somewhere to a show."

L. G. Riddle, secretary of the Delaware chamber of commerce, and Bruce Burgess, of the Delaware Retail Merchants, told the committee that immediate adoption of the Marshall bill is desirable.

In a short introductory talk, Senator Marshall said the existing blue law "is 99 per cent violated," adding that any law violated to such an extent has no place on the statute books.

Local ordinances may be passed to prevent Sunday movies where it is shown that the community is desirous of such action if the proposal is enacted into law. Senator Marshall said.

Under the existing code, operators of Sunday movies may be fined $100 and imprisoned for not more than six months.

Roosevelt controls—was only one manifestation of it.

Where, ex-Governor Alfred E. Smith stands in this situation is a matter of keen speculation outside the two camps. Chairman Raskob is one of Gov. Smith's closest friends. He was his hand-picked chairman of the national committee, over the protests of many loyal party men. There is also a strong bond of friendship between Smith and Roosevelt. Three times Roosevelt put Smith's name before Democratic national conventions, and it was only at Smith's earnest solicitation that Roosevelt consented to run for Governor in 1928. In the 1930 campaign, Smith was Roosevelt's most effective campaign supporter.

In this controversy over whether the national committee should, or should not take a stand on prohibition, Smith apparently had taken a neutral position.

In North Carolina yesterday, while defending the right of Democrats anywhere and at any time to speak their minds about any subject, Governor Smith said:

"The national committee has no power to decide party policies. That is the duty of the national convention. The convention is the supreme authority of the party. That is fundamental. But there should be no attempt to stifle free discussion in any gathering of Democrats."

Smith had been in conference with Raskob for some days prior to this declaration. He was a week-end guest at the chairman's Maryland estate. Presumably he spoke with full knowledge of Raskob's plans.

In some cases the reformers do better except for the fact that reform would make people like him.

French-Italian Accord

A MONG diplomatic miracles the settlement between France and Italy over naval policy must take first rank. A few weeks ago the world, including the treaty countries, was saying such a thing was impossible. Then, like a bolt from the blue they accomplished the "impossible."
 Thus is finis written to the extravagant naval competition which has been bankrupting both France and Italy; to the threatening, backbiting and admonishing; to the border mobilizations and rumors of war. Neither nation, apparently, was as eager for hostilities as Mussolini and Paris pretended in their belligerent moments.
 By what methods the settlement was effected—by what bargaining, pressure or concessions outside of the naval sphere—the world will be a long time discovering. Italy had stood resolutely on the principle of parity between the two countries. France was just as firm against even a nominal equality.
 The way is now open for completing the five-power treaty and the dangerous tension which developed after the London conference, giving rise to thoughts and talk of war, has relaxed. The five-year naval construction moratorium removes the major cause of this tension.
 It would seem that now is an auspicious time for launching other peace and disarmament programs, since it is not often that France and Italy are both found in a peaceable state of mind.

An Old Superstition

THE purblindness of observers of American affairs of a century ago is paralleled by the blurred vision of present-day critics who can see only one aspect of America and that a distorted one.
 Two great developments were going on side by side in the United States a hundred years ago. Americans were selling furs, creating a merchant marine building factories and extending commerce. But they were also making great and important social changes which afflicted the powerful caste aristocracies of Europe.
 They were establishing the right of every man to vote, irrespective of whether he had a fortune or was penniless. They were proclaiming by the establishment of the public school system that education should no longer be a vested class privilege. They were abolishing the old class terrorism of imprisonment poor debtors. In various other ways they were eradicating an ancient transplanted social order and building a new one.
 But this phase was not what most European critics of the time cared to relate or even to see. To describe, much less give it credit, would have made them unpopular among the ruling classes of their own country. And so they concentrated attention upon what they termed the unbridled materialism and vulgar ostentation of Americans. They and their successors have kept the superstition alive to this day.

Crime is Everywhere

ONE after another states have created organizations of state police until now nearly one-half have them in one form or another.
 There is a specific reason for this development, practically all of which has come in the last 15 or 20 years. It is that conditions which demanded police protection in the cities also have grown up in rural sections, have brought about the change. They have helped more than any other factor to wipe out the line between city and country.
 There could be no argument about the need for police protection in the cities. When the question is viewed in its proper light, there is equally no ground for argument about the need in the areas penetrated by main highways and more sparsely settled.
 Complaints that state police organizations are used improperly are not always without foundation, but the mere fact that a useful instrument for protection of life and property is sometimes abused does not argue for the destruction of the instrument. It is up to the voters to see that they place their state police under the control of men who will direct their operations into the proper channels.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Becoming cynical at her mother's wish to have her marry for wealth, Nancy Hollenbeck, young and beautiful, accepts the ardent attentions of Jack Beamer, who is married to a wealthy invalid. On a mountain trip, Nancy, after a brief courtship, marries Roger Decatur, a ranger. Sicken- ing of the loneliness, with Roger away, she returns home to resume her old life, still keeping her marriage a secret. When Roger, deeply in love with Nancy, comes to take her back, she tells him unless he makes his home in the city, she will divorce him, although she realizes her own love for him. She confides in her grandmother who gives her financial aid.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

NANCY HOLLENBECK never cried any more. Nor did she watch the postman. Nor jump when the telephone rang. That was something to be thankful for, and her mother, who had no difficulty counting her blessings, they were so few these days, was glad of that.
 The letters from Gale's Flat had stopped. When Mrs. Hollenbeck thought of that, she was almost happy. Nancy did listen to her after all. She did give up writing to that ranger. Thinking of it, mama had an almost physical sensation of warmth.
 "The girls mind me the way they did when they were babies," she told her mother-in-law boastfully.
 And she spoke of Mat Tully with a certain satisfaction. "Lou's latest suit."
 But not in your wildest imaginings could you call him a devoted suitor. There would be weeks when Louise wouldn't see him at all. He was so wrapped up in his work.
 Or was it Helen Heffinger? Louise wished she could be sure. She thought it was his work, but with Louise always talking about him. . . . And she had so much to offer.
 Plain! Louise no longer thought of herself as plain. It is wonderful what love can do! Her new clothes helped, too. Ever since the Saturday that Nancy failed to come to the Ladies' Auxiliary meeting at Aunt Ellie's home—that memorable Saturday that she waited for Roger—Aunt Ellie had shown her displeasure at Nancy by being extra nice to Lou.
 She took her out shopping and bought her a beautiful hunter's green velvet suit, with everything to match. True, she balked at the cost of alterations, but Lou didn't mind that, she was used to sewing.
 Aunt Ellie even talked about buying her a fur coat, but that was really to spite poor Uncle Joseph, who was complaining of rheumatism again. If he insisted upon going to the springs or a hospital she'd probably buy it, just to show she could spend money as fast he. But not a cent did she talk of squandering on Nancy, though Lou hinted as much as she dared.
 It bothered Lou a little, but there wasn't anything she could do about it. An army with banners could not budge Aunt Ellie once she had made up her mind.
 Walking to the ferry after a particularly dull afternoon in San Francisco with Aunt Ellie she happened to glance at a Market Street clock and saw that it was just quarter to five. The Parkhurst Bank, where papa worked, was only two or three blocks away. If she hurried she could get there before he left at five, and they could have their long trip home together.
 Besides, she had on the new green velvet, and Peter Hollenbeck loved to have his girls call on him when they were all dressed up.
 With a little sigh for poor, indulgent papa, asking so little, working so hard, she turned her footsteps toward the bank.
 Mr. Lachman's car, the chauffeur slumped in the seat in front, was waiting at the curb. Mr. Lachman himself was going out of the heavy bronze door at the moment Louise came in. "Wait for me!" "Well!" he boomed, "well! If it isn't the lady Louise!" Out came his cold, damp hand. Off came his derby hat.

 Papa, hurrying for the five-fifteen, dashed up to the door at that very moment. Intent on catching his boat, he passed right by them.
 "Bank Changes."
 "Wait!" Louise laughed, clutching at his coat. "Wait for me—I've come to take you home!"
 Oliver T. Lachman took another look at Louise. She was even more stunning than he had remembered. "Yes, we're going to drive you down to the ferry, old man!" He had made a swift decision. Genial wrinkles appeared on his long, lean face. He beamed at his employee. He was going to give him another chance.
 On the way to the ferry he lifted Louise's ungloved hand. "I see you wear no rings," he said meaningly. His eyes bored into hers.
 "I've never cared for them!"
 "Hum—that's because you never had the right papa to buy them for you. . . . haw, haw. . . . Right, Hollenbeck? Hum. . . . you'd better something special, Lady Louise. A special design. I might sketch something, just for fun!"
 Before they parted he had promised to call on Sunday to take Louise for a drive. "Show you what it's like to ride in a REAL car!" he jested. And then, joyfully, to papa. "By the way, Hollenbeck, that'll give us the chance to talk a little business. I've been thinking of making some changes at the bank. Might be something pretty nice for you."
 Ridiculous to feel like the heroine of a melodrama when you're twenty-five and have been known all your life as "the plain Hollenbeck girl." Louise knew it was she couldn't help feeling that way.
 Mr. Lachman was mad about her, that much was plain. He had given papa a raise and promised bigger things. He made extravagant gifts to the family, eyes on her.
 For the first time in her life Lou was adored. And it is exciting to be adored, even if it is only by a middle-aged banker with a long, wet nose and a bald head.
 A beloved woman. . . . Lou brushed her dark brown hair until it shone. Studied her fine, healthy skin. Admired her tall, slim figure. It gave her courage to think that some day. . . . some day not too far away, Mat Tully might really care. . . .
 Things might have come to a crisis sooner, but Aunt Ellie broke her hip and mama took that as an excuse to spend days, and often weeks with her in the warm, dark house in San Francisco. "I'm really her nearest relation," she said. "I ought to be there in case anything happens."
 The wife's stopover is ill. . . . papa told Mr. Lachman. "A very kind papa," devoted to Kitty and the girls.
 Mr. Lachman, hoping his consideration would be noticed and appreciated, relaxed his courting just a little. In a quiet corner of the club in the evenings he gave himself up to thoughts of Louise. . . . angel of mercy, soothing the fevered brow. . . . Little pictures of her hovering over the sick bed floated before his eyes. Sweet Lady Louise. . . . Imperceptibly the picture changed. The old lady Louise was soothing. . . . "Aah!" He could almost feel her soft hand at his temple. . . . what a wife she would be. . . .
 But it was really Kitty who sat long hours with the invalid. Aunt Ellie in one big, padded chair, Kitty in another, they would chat and doze and chat all day.
 "You can't fool me, Joseph is too free with that second girl," Aunt Ellie would begin.

Almost Spring.

Divorces seem so simple when you read about them. When they're your own they aren't simple at all. There are witnesses to think of, and grounds to prepare. Annulments are even harder. Mr. Hess, the attorney she had engaged, was supposed to be one of the best. But he was so slow. . . . if only something would happen!
 "Come up to the stock farm over the week-end," Jack suggested. "There won't be any detectives. Imaginary or otherwise, to bother you. . . . or have to go up and look over the yearlings anyway. Come on, take a chance!"
 He really didn't expect her to come.
 She looked at him dreadingly, her pansy-soot eyes far away. "Jack, I'd just love to. I'm so sick of the city, never going anywhere exciting. . . . but how could I go?"
 "Why not?"
 "Well, it would be all right, of course, but who'd believe it? No, it's impossible. . . .
 "It's impossible? In the first place, my place is going to know. And in the second place, if they do find out, it's all right. The manager, Jack Garfield, has his family there. Mrs. Garfield is a fine little woman, used to be a school teacher, very refined. You can be visiting her! They've got two kids and 18 dogs and 17 cats, and Mrs. Garfield belongs to the Methodist Church. Now, I ask you, what could be more respectable than that?"
 It might be respectable, but it wouldn't seem so if it were found out. Nancy knew that. Well! That made it more exciting.
 Meeting Jack on Saturday morning, climbing into the long, low car beside him, Nancy felt like her old self. An early morning fog had curled her bright hair into soft ringlets that framed her impudent, laughing face in a halo of burnished gold. But now the sun shone, bright and warm. . . . February, almost Spring.

erty the picture reaches a standard that has not been surpassed.
 One of the most exciting se-quences is a race of mule teams along a precipice, culminating when a mine wagon filled with ore catapults into the ravine as the driver and others leap to safety.
 A cattle stampede of five hun-dred steers forms another thrilling sequence with the frenzied dashing animals dashing headlong into the cameras in a manner that should fill audiences out of their seats.
 In addition to the many thrilling sequences, "The Painted Desert" is packed with romance and drama. Bill Boyd has one of the best roles of his career and his supporting cast, including Helen Twelvetrees, William Farnum, J. Farrell Mac-Donald and others is the strongest ever assembled in any picture.

AT THE CLIFTONA

When Nancy Carroll appeared in "The Devil's Holiday" at the Par-amount Theatre in New York early last summer, the metropolitan newspapers were as one in citing her capabilities as a remarkable fa-tented dramatic actress.
 This public appreciation of her gift for the more weighty type of character-portrayal led Paramount to decide upon "Laughter" as her next dramatic release.
 "Laughter" comes to the Clif-tona Theatre for a two day run on Friday next. It is an original story written by Douglas Doty and Har-ry D'Abbadie D'Arrast.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Hailed as the most thrill-ing of all chapter plays, "Indians Are Coming" will be shown by the Cliftona Theatre beginning Friday with the first chapter, "Pals in Buckskin."
 This exciting Universal chapter play depicts the winning of the old West by daring frontiersmen, and is packed with incidents and events of the most stirring nature. The story deals with the westward journey of a family by wagon train, and spectacular fighting with the Indians.
 Tim McCoy and Allene Ray are co-featured in this production. The exceptionally strong supporting cast includes Francis Ford, Char-les Royal, Don Francis and Ed-mund Cobb.

French-Italian Accord

AMONG diplomatic miracles the settlement between France and Italy over naval policy must take first rank. A few weeks ago the world, including the treaty countries, was saying such a thing was impossible. Then, like a bolt from the blue they accomplished the "impossible."

Thus is finished written to the extravagant naval competition which has been bankrupting both France and Italy; to the threatening, backbiting and admonishing; to the border mobilizations and rumors of war. Neither nation, apparently, was as eager for hostilities as Mussolini and Paris pretended in their beligerent moments.

By what methods the settlement was effected—by what bargaining, pressure or concessions outside of the naval sphere—the world will be a long time discovering. Italy had stood resolutely on the principle of parity between the two countries France was just as firm against even a nominal equality.

The way is now open for completing the five-power treaty and the dangerous tension which developed after the London conference, giving rise to thoughts and talk of war, has relaxed. The five-year naval construction moratorium removes the major cause of this tension.

It would seem that now is an auspicious time for launching other peace and disarmament programs, since it is not often that France and Italy are both found in a peaceable state of mind.

An Old Superstition

THE purliness of observers of American affairs of a century ago is paralleled by the blurred vision of present-day critics who can see only one aspect of America and that a distorted one.

Two great developments were going on side by side in the United States a hundred years ago. Americans were felling forests, creating a merchant marine building factories and extending commerce. But they were also making great and important social changes which frightened the powerful caste aristocracies of Europe.

They were establishing the right of every man to vote, irrespective of whether he had a fortune or was penniless. They were proclaiming by the establishment of the public school system that education should no longer be a vested class privilege. They were abolishing the old class terrorism of imprisoning poor debtors. In various other ways they were eradicating an ancient transplanted social order and building a new one.

But this phase was not what most European critics of the time cared to relate or even to see. To describe, much less give it credit, would have made them unpopular among the ruling classes of their own country. And so they concentrated attention upon what they termed the unbridled materialism and vulgar ostentation of Americans. They and their successors have kept the superstition alive to this day.

Crime is Everywhere

ONE after another states have created organizations of state police until now nearly one-half have them in one form or another.

There is a specific reason for this development, practically all of which has come in the last 15 or 20 years. It is that conditions which demanded police protection in the cities also have grown up in rural sections, have brought about the change. They have helped more than any other factor to wipe out the line between city and country.

There could be no argument about the need for police protection in the cities. When the question is viewed in its proper light, there is equally no ground for argument about the need in the areas penetrated by main highways and more sparsely settled.

Complaints that state police organizations are used improperly are not always without foundation, but the mere fact that a useful instrument for protection of life and property is sometimes abused does not argue for the destruction of the instrument. It is up to the voters to see that they place their state police under the control of men who will direct their operations into the proper channels.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Becoming cynical at her mother's wish to have her marry for wealth, Nancy Hollenbeck, young and beautiful, accepts the ardent attentions of Jack Beamer, who is married to a wealthy invalid. On a mountain trip, Nancy, after a brief courtship, marries Roger Decatur, a ranger. Sickening of the loneliness with Roger away, she returns home to resume her old life, still keeping her marriage a secret. When Roger, deeply in love with Nancy, comes to take her back, she tells him unless he makes his home in the city, she will divorce him, although she realizes her own love for him. She confides in her grandmother who gives her financial aid.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

NANCY HOLLENBECK never cried any more. Nor did she watch the postman. Nor jump when the telephone rang.

That was something to be thankful for, and her mother, who had no difficulty counting her blessings, they were so few these days, was glad of that.

The letters from Gale's flat had stopped. When Mrs. Hollenbeck thought of that she was almost happy. Nancy did listen to her, after all. She did give up writing to that ranger. Thinking of it, mama had an almost physical sensation of warmth.

"The girls mind me the way they did when they were babies," she told her mother-in-law boastfully.

And she spoke of Mat Tully with a certain satisfaction. "My latest suitor."

But not in your wildest imaginings could you call him a devoted suitor. There would be weeks when Louise wouldn't see him at all. He was so wrapped up in his work.

Or was it Helen Heffinger? Louise wished she could be sure. She thought it was his work, but with Louise always talking about him. . . . And she had so much to offer, even if she was plain.

Plain! Louise no longer thought of herself as plain. It is wonderful what love can do! Her new clothes helped, too. Ever since the Saturday that Nancy failed to come to the Ladies' Auxiliary meeting at Aunt Ellie's home—that memorable Saturday that she waited for Roger—Aunt Ellie had shown her displeasure at Nancy by being extra nice to Lou.

Dressed Up.

She took her out shopping and bought her a beautiful hunter's green velvet suit, with everything to match. True, she balked at the cost of alterations, but Lou didn't mind that, she was used to sewing.

Aunt Ellie even talked about buying her a fur coat, but that was really to spite poor Uncle Joseph, who was complaining of rheumatism again. If he insisted upon going to the springs or a hospital she'd probably buy it, just to show she could spend money as fast he.

But not a cent did she talk of squandering on Nancy, though Lou hinted as much as she dared.

It bothered her a little, but there was nothing she could do about it. An army with banners couldn't judge Aunt Ellie once she had made up her mind.

Walking to the ferry after a particularly dull afternoon in San Francisco with Aunt Ellie she happened to glance at a Market Street clock and saw that it was just quarter to five. The Parkhursts, where a parka worked, was only two or three blocks away. If she hurried she could get there before he left at five, and they could have the long trip home together.

Besides, she had on the new green velvet, and Peter Hollenbeck loved to have his girls call on him when they were all dressed up.

With a little sigh for poor, indulgent papa, asking so little, working so hard, she turned her footsteps toward the bank.

Mr. Lachman's car, the chauffeur slumped in the seat in front, was waiting at the curb. Mr. Lachman himself was going out of the can also, but it wasn't on wheels.

The hardest job the superior races have is to keep on being superior.

It is almost impossible to tell which comes first, contentment or laziness.

Opinions are worth little. We judge another town by the way the speed cops treat us.

All you can say for silver dollars is that they make a loud noise in the collection plate.

Any girls who goes through college without having her heart broken twice will make a fine teacher.

Once you have begun to think about her before breakfast, it is time, young man, to compare furniture prices.

What with the yellow and red perils, the lives of the nervous are just one narrow escape after another.

Mar's best laugh this week is the report that the practice of offering up human sacrifices is being stamped out in an Asiatic state.

DRIVER KILLED

WYANDOTTE, Mich.—Edward Leinbach, 50, of Chicago, was fatally injured here when he drove his automobile into the rear of a parked truck.

John Gaston, 37, of Cincinnati, driver of the truck, had stopped to make repairs. He was standing in front of the truck at the time of the collision and suffered a fractured leg. He is in General hospital here.

Leinbach was a representative of the topic-Aire Co., Minneapolis.

The old-time tramp had a tin heavy bronze door at the moment Louise came in.

"Well!" he boomed, "well! If it isn't the lady Louise!" Out came his cold, damp hand. Off came his derby hat.

Papa, hurrying for the five-fifteen, dashed up to the door at that very moment. Intent on catching his boat, he passed right by them.

Bank Changes.

"Wait!" Louise laughed, clutched at his coat. "Wait for me—I've come to take you home!"

Oliver T. Lachman took another look at Louise. She was even more stunning than he had remembered.

"Yes, we're going to drive you down to the ferry, old man!" He had made a swift decision. Genial wrinkles appeared on his long, lean face. He beamed at his employee. He was going to give him another chance.

On the way to the ferry he lifted Louise's ungloved hand. "I see you wear no rings," he said meaningly. His eyes bored into hers.

"I've never cared for them!"

"Hum—that's because you never had the right papa to buy them for you. . . . haw, haw. . . . Right, Hollenbeck? Hum. . . . you'd need something special, Lady Louise. A special design. I might sketch something, just for fun!"

Before they parted he had promised to call on Sunday to take Louise for a drive.

You what it's like to ride in a REAL car!" he bellowed. And then, jovially, to papa. "By the way, Hollenbeck, that will give us the chance to talk a little business. I've been thinking of making some changes at the bank. Might be something pretty nice for you."

Ridiculous to feel like the heroine of a melodrama when you're twenty-five and have been known all your life as "the plain Hollenbeck girl." Louise knew it was silly. But she couldn't help feeling that way.

Mr. Lachman was mad about her, that much was plain. He had given papa a raise and promised bigger things. He made extravagant gifts to the family, eyes on him.

For the first time in her life Lou was adored. And it is exciting to be adored, even if it is only by a middle-aged banker with a long, wet nose and a bald head.

A beloved woman. . . . Lou brushed her dark brown hair until it shone. Studied her fine, healthy skin. Admired her tall, slim figure. . . . It gave her courage to take that same day. . . . some day not too far away, Mat Tully might really care. . . .

Things might have come to a crisis sooner, but Aunt Ellie broke her hip and mama took that as an excuse to spend days, and often weeks with her in the warm, dark house in San Francisco. "I'm really her nearest relation," she said. "I ought to be there in case anything happens."

"The wife's stepister is ill," papa told Mr. Lachman. "A very rich woman. . . . devoted to Kitty and the girls."

Mr. Lachman, hoping his consideration would be noticed and appreciated, relaxed his courting just a little. In a quiet corner of the club in the evenings he gave himself up to thoughts of Louise.

Angel of mercy, soothing the fevered brow. . . . Little pictures of her hovering over the sick bed floated before his eyes. Sweet Lady Louise. . . . Imperceptibly the picture changed. The old lady vanished. It was his fevered brow Louise was soothing. "Ah!" He could almost feel her soft hand at his temple. . . . what a wife she would be. . . .

But it was really Kitty who sat long hours with the invalid, Aunt Ellie in one big, padded chair, Kitty in another, they would chat and doze and chat all day.

"You can't fool me, Joseph is too free with that second girl," Aunt Ellie would begin.

Once on the subject of poor Uncle Joseph's failing, she would talk for an hour and all mama had to do was murmur "No!" or "Would you believe it," and lie back in her chair, not hearing a word, her mind in a delightful state of coma.

Every two hours Aunt Ellie took her "nourishment" and of course mama, too. The old cook knew how to please. The trays came up laden with rich little cakes, whipped cream, and sodamint tablets, laid out like candies on a tiny glass dish.

Food always made Kitty Hollenbeck talkative. She would nibble and complain about Grandma Hollenbeck, "Ellie, I give you my word, she'd rather talk to the butcher boy than to me. Why last week. . . ."

Then it would be Aunt Ellie's turn to nod and mumble, "Well!" soothed by the drone of conversation, lulled to warm sleepiness by the familiar tale. . . . almost as good as counting sheep.

They both enjoyed the winter. There was little enjoyment in it for Nancy. This business of meeting Jack Beamer in private booths and out-of-the-way places was getting on her nerves. No matter where they went they bumped into a skinny fellow with a derby hat and a muffer around his neck. He was always standing around.

"I know it's a detective!" Nancy fidgeted.

"Don't be absurd!" The long delay was telling on Jack, too. He looked older; there were little puffs under his eyes. But he wasn't afraid of detectives. He felt sure that he had allayed all Anita's suspicions.

"Oh, well! I don't care much either way," Nancy had said wearily. The months of caution had been so long. . . . so gloomy. . . . Nights of restless tossing, fevered dreams of Roger and the cabin. . . . days of waiting.

Almost Spring.

Divorces seem so simple when you read about them. When they're your own they aren't simple at all. There are witnesses to think of, and grounds to prepare. Annulments are even harder. Mr. Hess, a lawyer she had engaged, was supposed to be one of the best. But he was so slow. . . . if only something would happen!

"Come up to the stock farm over the week-end," Jack suggested. "There won't be any detectives, imaginary or otherwise, to bother you there. I have to go up and look over the yearlings anyway. Come on, take a chance!"

He really didn't expect her to come.

She looked at him dreadingly, her pensive eyes far away. "Jack, I'd just love to. I'm so sick of the city, never going anywhere exciting. . . . but how could I go?"

"Why not?"

"Well, it would be all right, of course, but who'd believe it? No, it's impossible. . . ."

"Why is it impossible? In the first place, no one is going to know. And in the second place, if they do find out, it's all right. The manager, Jack Garfield, has his family there. Mrs. Garfield is a fine little woman, used to be a school teacher, very refined. You can be visiting her! They've got two kids and 18 dogs and 17 cats, and Mrs. Garfield belongs to the Methodist Church. Now, I ask you, what could be more respectable than that?"

It might be respectable, but it wouldn't seem so if it were found out. Nancy knew that. Well! That made it more exciting.

Meeting Jack on Saturday morning, climbing into the long, low car beside him, Nancy felt like her old self. An early morning fog had curled her bright hair into soft ringlets that framed her impudent, laughing face in a halo of burnished gold. But now the sun shone, bright and warm. . . . February. . . . almost Spring. . . .

NEW YORK.—Sinclair Lewis, writing cynic, arrived home today on the Europa after receiving the Nobel Prize in Stockholm and castigating American customs in a speech there, only to defend his native land against the aspersions of an English lecturer.

The lecturer was J. B. Priestly, London writer, who made a speech last night in which he said Lewis was a propagandist and a writer of thesis novels, and declared that New York was the noisiest city in the world.

"New York may have the noisiest streets but London has the noisiest lecturers," Lewis commented.

CHILD IS LOST AND THEN FOUND
Richard Burk, aged 4, this city, was without home and parents for several hours Tuesday afternoon, until Probation Officer L. M. Brown and Officer William McCrady were notified, and started a search for his relatives.

Richard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Burk, who formerly resided in the country, moved into their residence on E. High-st Tuesday afternoon, and were busy unpacking and did not pay much attention to Richard. The four-year-old lad drifted away from home with some school children, and wandered to Weiler's Grocery on E. Franklin-st, where he was picked up as lost by Officers Brown and McCrady.

The officers visited all the schools in the city in an attempt to gain some knowledge of his whereabouts, and finally Mrs. Gladys Peters, teacher at High-st school, told the officers that she had seen the new family moving in. In the meantime, the parents had notified police headquarters, and other members of the police force were looking for the lad.

Richard was finally placed in the hands of his parents who were overjoyed over his return.

CHILD IS LOST AND THEN FOUND

Richard Burk, aged 4, this city, was without home and parents for several hours Tuesday afternoon, until Probation Officer L. M. Brown and Officer William McCrady were notified, and started a search for his relatives.

Richard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Burk, who formerly resided in the country, moved into their residence on E. High-st Tuesday afternoon, and were busy unpacking and did not pay much attention to Richard. The four-year-old had drifted away from home with some school children, and wandered to Weiler's Grocery on E. Franklin-st, where he was picked up as lost by Officers Brown and McCrady.

The officers visited all the schools in the city in an attempt to gain some knowledge of his whereabouts, and finally Mrs. Gladys Peters, teacher at High-st school, told the officers that she had seen the new family moving in. In the meantime, the parents had notified police headquarters, and other members of the police force were looking for the lad.

Richard was finally placed in the hands of his parents who were overjoyed over his return.

Lewis, Critic, Is Defender Of New York 'Gainst Brit

NEW YORK.—Sinclair Lewis, writing cynic, arrived home today on the Europa after receiving the Nobel Prize in Stockholm and castigating American customs in a speech there, only to defend his native land against the aspersions of an English lecturer.

The lecturer was J. B. Priestley, London writer, who made a speech last night in which he said Lewis was a propagandist and a writer of thesis novels, and declared that New York was the noisiest city in the world.

"New York may have the noisiest streets but London has the noisiest lecturers," Lewis commented.

JOHNSTON PAINT LINE ADOPTED

In adopting a paint line for the Hall & Gleadell drug store job it was necessary to consider the matter from many angles. Materials that would meet with the approval of the customer were essential. These and many other things had to be considered. Consequently when information was had and assembled it seemed only logical to stock the products of THE R.F. JOHNSTON PAINT COMPANY, of Cincinnati, O.

They have been engaged in making paints, varnishes, lacquers, etc., for more than a quarter of a century, still young enough to be the most progressive manufacturers in the paint business, and yet not so old that they have become so set in their ways that progress is no longer a part of their program, as is the case with folks not only in the paint business but in all lines of merchandising and manufacture.

They have a completely stocked branch at Columbus thereby enabling us to get immediate delivery by truck from that source.

The guarantees backing their products are all in favor of the customer. They mean what they say. So far as we have been able to discover they have very few complaints to adjust because their materials are so near 100% satisfactory.

One of the big features as to why we are continuing this line to the exclusion of all others is that so far we have been able to find out through information of users of them for years, and from the experience of our predecessors, was that the Johnston line had proven to be the best seller and the least complained of. We trust that our action in continuing. The Johnston Line of Paint Materials will meet with the approval of the community.

Setting a radical change in the order of things, Norma Terris and Lina Basquette, two noted stars and screen stars, pictured on the sands at Miami Beach, where they seem to be enjoying themselves.

We might say a few things about Johnston that have recently come to our attention and which but a few of our folks may know about, and these statements are made without fear of successful contradiction:

Johnston developed flat wall paint in colors some twenty six years ago; the very first to be manufactured in the United States, or in the world for that matter.

He was making the now well-known pyroxilin lacquers as far back as 1914, long before it was discovered to be a marketable product.

He originated Four Hour Drying Varnishes and Four Hour Drying Enamel; their "On and Dry in Four Hour Varnishes" being well known where good paints are handled; and while it may be necessary for us to call the attention of our community particularly to their "Scotch Four Hour Enamel" we are aware that throughout the eastern states and central western states Scotch Four Hour Enamel is better known than the highly advertised products because there is real quality in the can and it meets absolutely the consumer demand.

It is our purpose to serve the community to the very best of our ability; we aim to handle only reputable products all the way through, and we ask the cooperation of all in our efforts to be of the very best service to all.

Who said the English can't see a joke? They're laughing at Big Bill Thompson.

Binding girls' feet was a brutal fad, but the Chinese let their small sons keep their tonsils.

DIFFERENT FIRMS DO THEIR PARTS

Making a modern store room for the Hall & Gleadell Drug store required the skill and labor of several Circleville firms. The job of installing a new front was ably done by Barnes & Marion, local contractors. The plumbing necessary to install the fountain was done by Ed Crst, The Moffitt Electric Shop, did the electrical work and placed the fixtures making the room well lighted at all times.

Painting the room and refinishing the cabinets, etc., was the work of Clarence Myers, local paint contractor, while Geo. Young did the paper hanging.

The back bar and mirror so well fitted to complete the fountain arrangement was made by the Circleville Lumber Co. This is a fine piece of work and makes a fine fixture for the new fountain. The booths for serving were made by the Lee Lumber Co.

With everything new and everything properly arranged they are well able to render prompt service at all times.

Seized with an attack of politics the Germans henceforth will drink chairs and tables bolted to the floor. Americans passed that stage of the fever 50 years ago.

The youth who was arrested, sentenced, married and sued for breach of promise all in one week believes in observing his "weeks" all at the same time.

The trouble with telling a girl not to give you any of her lip is she might misconstrue it.

WHO'S WHO AT NEW DRUG STORE

When ill health made it necessary for J. G. Wilder to discontinue active business after many years Homer Gleadell saw an opportunity to come back to Circleville where he had spent several years previous and with Charles Hall they purchased the store on January 19th.

Operating a Drug Store is not new to Homer for he has spent many years in just such places. Homer was born at Leesburg, O., in 1903 and after graduating from the Leesburg high school attended Ohio State University, graduating in 1923. After graduating he worked for the Mykrantz Drug Co. for a year and then trekked to Hamilton and London, O., and back to Columbus with the Mykrantz Drug Co. Soon after that he came to Circleville as manager of the local Mykrantz store and served in this capacity for four years before being transferred back to Columbus, and had charge of a Mykrantz store before purchasing the Wilder Drug store.

Homer is married and has two children, residing on W. Franklin st. He is a member of the local Elks, Mesonic lodge, Eastern Star and Kiwanis Club.

Chas. L. Hall, the senior member of the firm, who has not yet located in Circleville is at the present time assistant manager of the Historical Publishing Co. He has had quite a war record, having served with the Penn. National Guards on the Mexican border in 1916. During 1917 and 1919 was with the American forces in France. Served with the American Graves Registration Service in France, Belgium and Scotland in 1920 and 1921 and spent the following two years with the American Relief Administration, under President Hoover at Moscow, Kaza,

Why we spend $2,000,000 to put CAMEL cigarettes in the new HUMIDOR PACK

WE have been in the tobacco business a long time down here at Winston-Salem and we take a lot of pride in the quality of the cigarettes we make.

While we have spent a good many million dollars advertising Camels, we've always held to the old fashioned idea that the thing that really counts is what we put into our cigarette and not what we say about it.

If we know anything about tobacco, and we think we do, Camels contain the choicest Turkish and the mellowest, ripest domestic leaves that money can buy.

In fact we have every reason to be proud of the quality of Camels as they come from the factory, but the remark of an old friend of ours from Denver some time ago emphasized a point that has been the problem of the cigarette industry for years.

As he inhaled the smoke from a Camel we gave him in our offices one morning, he sighed with very evident enjoyment and then asked jokingly, "What is this, a special blend reserved for Camel executives?"

"Certainly not," we told him. "This package of Camels was bought at the corner store this morning."

"Well," he said, "I've been a dyed in the wool Camel smoker for a good many years, but upon my soul I never got a cigarette as good as this in Denver. If you would give the rest of the world the kind of Camels you sell here in Winston-Salem, you ought to have all the cigarette business there is."

THAT statement simply emphasized again the cigarette industry's most important problem. The more we thought about it, the surer we were that he was dead right, and that somehow, something must be done.

Denver wasn't getting a fair break. Neither in fact was any other town. The only people who really knew how good Camels could be, were the folks right here in Winston-Salem.

That was due to a factor no cigarette manufacturer had ever been able to control.

Naturally there is no difference whatever in the quality of the tobacco in Camels, whether you buy them in Winston-Salem, Denver or Timbuctoo. But up to now there has been a very real difference in the condition of the cigarettes by the time they reached the smoker.

The flavor and mildness of fine tobacco depend upon the retention of its natural, not added, moisture content which is prime at about ten per cent.

In spite of our great pains always to make sure Camels left the factory with just the right amount of natural moisture, no cigarette package had ever yet been designed that could prevent that precious moisture from drying out.

THERE are three things about a cigarette that can sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat.

- (1) Cheap tobaccos.
- (2) Particles of peppery dust left in the tobacco because of inefficient cleaning methods.
- (3) A parched dry condition of the tobacco due to loss of natural moisture by overheating or evaporation.

Always certain of the quality of our tobaccos we had already made Camel a "dustless" cigarette by the use of a specially designed vacuum cleaning apparatus exclusive with our factory.

Now, if we could perfect a package that would actually act as a humidior and retain the natural moisture content, then Yuma, Arizona, could enjoy Camels as much as we do here at Winston-Salem.

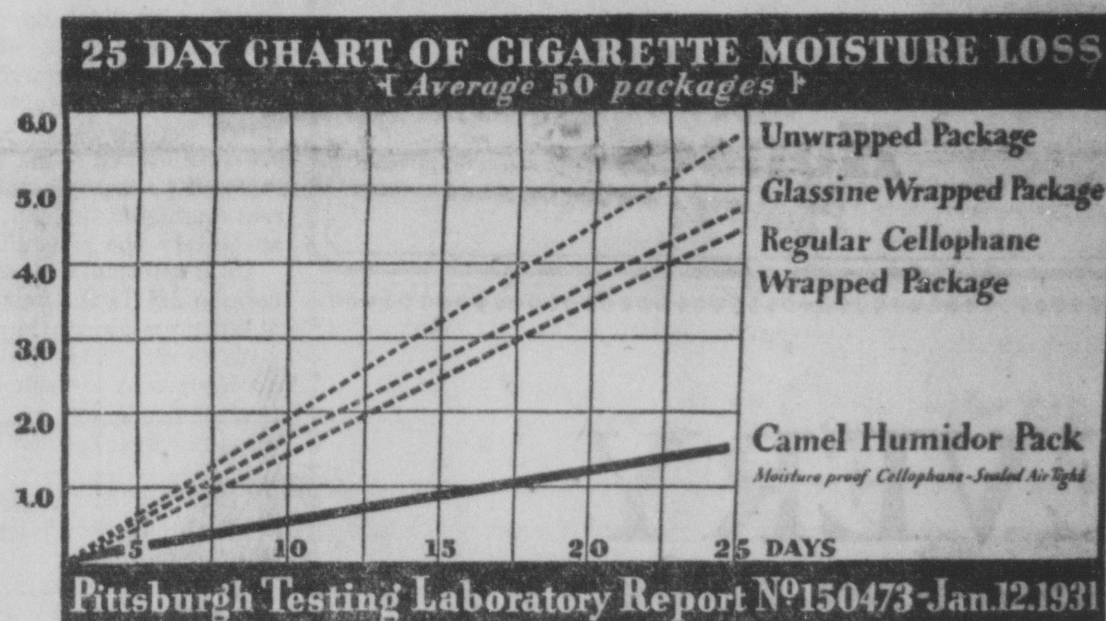

We knew what we wanted. We tried many things. We asked the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory to help us.

After many experiments and humidity tests covering all methods of packing cigarettes came the detailed report of which this is the net:

- (A) No existing cigarette package, including those wrapped in glassine paper or ordinary cellophane, gives anything like adequate protection against evaporation.
- (B) All cigarettes so packed tend to dry out rapidly from the day they are released from the factory.
- (C) Only a waterproof material with a specially devised air-tight seal could give the desired protection. (D) This measure, while costly, could be relied on to keep Camels in prime condition for at least three months in any climate.

If you have a technical bent, the graph below made by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory will show you the exact results of their exhaustive study.

Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

YOU may be sure we gave this report a lot of careful study. We checked it and re-checked it and then we went ahead. We tried this device and that. At last we met success. The air-tight wrapping involved the designing of special processes, special machines.

That costs a lot of money, more than $2,000,000 the first year, but after you have tried Camels packed this modern new way we are sure you will agree it is a fine investment.

For some time now every Camel that has left our factory has gone out in this new Humidor Pack.

We have said nothing about it until now, to make sure your dealer would be able to supply you when the good news came out.

Camel smokers of course have already discovered that their favorite cigarette is better and milder now than ever before.

If you aren't a Camel smoker, try them just to see what a difference there really is between harsh, dried out tobacco and a properly conditioned cigarette.

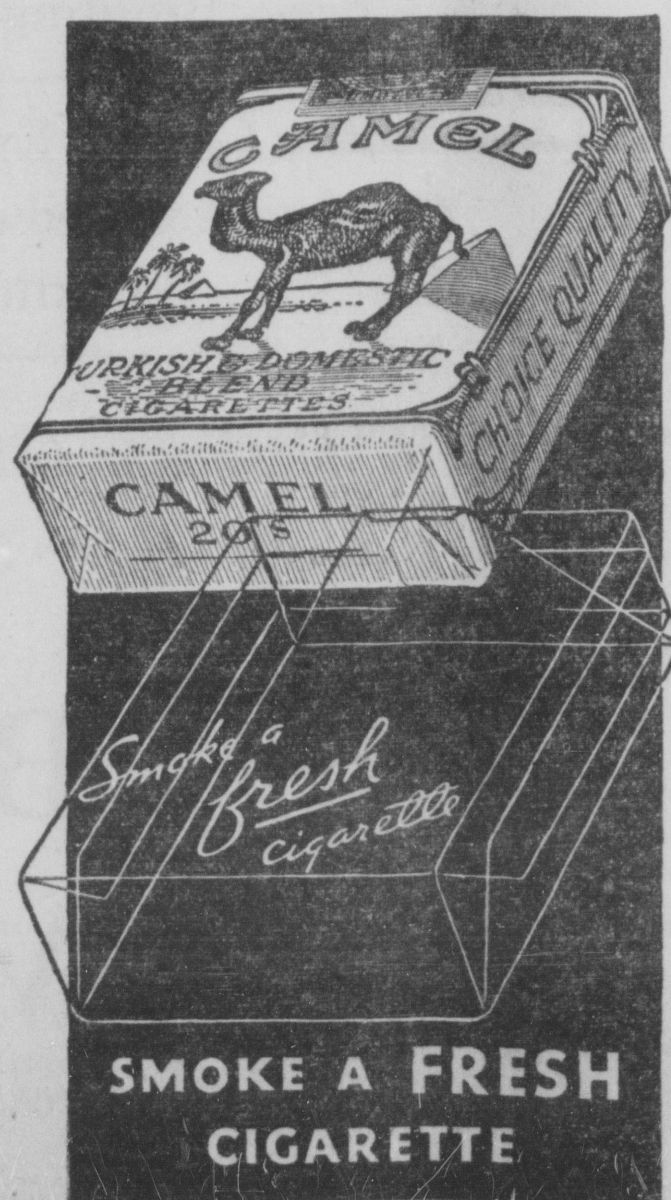

You can feel the difference, you can hear the difference and you certainly can taste the difference.

Of course we're prejudiced.

We always have believed that Camel is the world's best cigarette.

Now we know it.

Just treat yourself to Camels in the new Humidor Pack and see if you don't agree.

JOHNSTON PAINT LINE ADOPTED

In adopting a paint line for the Hall & Gleadell drug store job it was necessary to consider the matter from many angles. Materials that would meet with the approval of the customer were essential. These and many other things had to be considered. Consequently when information was had and assembled it seemed only logical to stock the products of THE R.F. JOHNSTON PAINT COMPANY, of Cincinnati, O.

They have been engaged in making paints, varnishes, lacquers, etc. for more than a quarter of a century, still young enough to be the most progressive manufacturers in the paint business, and yet not so old that they have become so set in their ways that progress is no longer a part of their program, as is the case with folks not only in the paint business but in all lines of merchandising and manufacture.

They have a completely stocked branch at Columbus thereby enabling us to get immediate delivery by truck from that source.

The guarantees backing their products are all in favor of the customer. They mean what they say. So far as we have been able to discover they have very few complaints to adjust because their materials are so near 100% satisfactory.

One of the big features as to why we are continuing this line to the exclusion of all others is that so far we have been able to find out through information of users of them for years, and from the experience of our predecessors, was that the Johnston line had proven to be the best seller and the least complained of. We trust that our

At the present time Mr. Gleadell is being assisted at the Drug store by John Dearth, son of W. J. Dearth, of this city. Bizarre Theories Found Surround Gordon Death

NEW YORK, March 4.—Out of the maze of conflicting clues and bizarre theories surrounding the strangling of Vivian Gordon, Broadway butterfly and prospective witness against woman-“framing” vice squad cops, there emerged today the sinister fact that the beautiful, red haired “girl about town” had a premonition she was to be “knocked off.” “Knocked off” were the words she employed in writing down in her diary her growing fear that she was to meet an untimely death. On one occasion she wrote: “(Giving a man’s name) is supposed to have said, ‘We’ll take her out somewhere. No one will know what has happened to her. Every mark of identification will be missing, especially that ring, meaning the $2,500 ring I wear.’”

On Feb. 13, 1929, she made the following notation: “(Giving a man’s name) refused to pay doctor’s bill. If anything happens to me he is to blame. He has henchmen.” And again she wrote: “(Naming a man) is the one who was to have knocked me off last winter. I guess (three initials) is seeking his services for that deed. (Three initials) would stoop to anything.”

The new excerpts from Miss Gordon’s diary were made public by District Attorney Charles E. McLaughlin who announced “we are nearer a solution of this case than we were 24 hours ago.” Other developments in the Gordon murder mystery were as follows:

1.—Two men in evening dress were in the “murder car” with Miss Gordon on the night she was slain, according to the story told District Attorney McLaughlin by Mrs. Lenora Halsey, a Cuban, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., who held a part-time job as maid for a woman she believed was Miss Gordon. Mrs. Halsey told of being in the automobile with Miss Gordon and the two men a few hours before the crime was committed.

2.—Mrs. Cassie Clayton, of Erie, Pa., former chum of Miss Gordon, testified before Referee Samuel Seabury, head of the current inquiry in the alleged “framing” of women by vice squad policemen and detectives. Mrs. Clayton is said to have revealed many details of Miss Gordon’s glamorous past and to have connected the slain woman with the Arnold Rothstein gambling ring.

3.—The police were investigating a bizarre story to the effect that Miss Gordon took an active part in a “love racket” in which she is alleged to have “cleaned up” thousands of dollars. She is reported to have had a list containing the names, telephone numbers and descriptions of 40 attractive girls who co-operated in making “suckers” out of their gentlemen friends.

The clew regarding the two men in evening dress given by Mrs. Halsey was regarded as important by the police and they were checking it closely this morning. On the night of the murder, Feb. 18, Mrs. Halsey said she met Miss Gordon—or Mrs. Biddle as she knew her—at 45th-st and Broadway, about midnight. Miss Gordon offered to drive Mrs. Halsey to her home in Mount Vernon.

Two men in evening dress were in the car besides Miss Gordon, according to Mrs. Halsey. After the car was driven to the Halsey home, Miss Gordon told her the three of them were going to a road house to dine. The automobile was then headed toward New York.

Miss Gordon was strangled with a clothesline and her body tossed into Van Cortlandt Park about 2:30 in the morning. The route of the car from Mount Vernon would have taken it past the park.

Mrs. Halsey said she was confident she would recognize the two men if she were to see them again. She described both of them as very dark-complexioned.

Cassie Clayton’s story was less dramatic. However, she is said to have told the authorities of a $250,000 floating crap game that Miss Gordon had informed her was operated in various hotels adjacent to the Broadway theatrical district. Vivian, it is understood, knew the detectives who accepted “graft” as well as the “pay off men.”

BARNES & MARION INSTALL NEW FRONT

It did not take this firm long to transpose the old front of the Hall & Gleadell Drug store into one of the finest and most attractive fronts in Circleville. To make this change it was necessary to shore the front of the building before tearing out the old front, which had been serving this store room for many years. Only a few days after the former front was out, and the mammoth pillars of wood that held the building temporarily in place, were removed, did the new front begin to take form and with unusual speed was completed the plate glass installed and the tile entrance laid. To the average looker on this seemed like a task hard to accomplish but the experience of the members of this firm and their experienced workers nothing is too big a job for them to tackle. It is just this sort of work that they are accustomed to doing and the buildings such as the Elks Club, and the new Jacksontown school are the reasons for their success as general contractors.

R. L. BREHMER WILL FURNISH FLOWERS

To the ladies who attend the opening of the Hall and Gleadell Drug Store Saturday they will receive a large carnation fresh from the Brehmer Greenhouses. Bob Brehmer who recently purchased these greenhouses took particular pains in getting a fine assortment for this opening day. In addition to the Carnations Mr. Brehmer has decorated the interior with palms etc. from the Greenhouses to add a touch of beauty and to show appreciation to this new firm in Circleville.

ARRAIGN CAPONE AS CITY ENEMY

CHICAGO, March 4.—Alphonse Capone, millionaire gang leader, was to be arraigned in felony court today on a warrant naming him as a common vagrant and Chicago’s number one “Public Enemy.”

Capone faces the possibility of being sentenced to another jail term in addition to the six months’ term imposed by federal judge James H. Wilkerson last week on his conviction of federal contempt.

As in his appearance last week, Capone will be escorted by a heavy police guard while in the downtown district to prevent any attempts at assassination.

SHOW FAMILY IN WILL CONTEST

CHICAGO, Ill.—A family of seven—comprised of two blue-eyed parents, two blue-eyed children and three brown-eyed children—was to be exhibited for scientific reasons in the court of Judge Michael Feinberg.

Attorneys for George Adair Greene Longley, fighting to break the $1,000,000 will of the late Albert W. Longley, a hat manufacturer, contend his family proves that, although George Longley is brown-eyed, he may still be the son of blue-eyed Albert Longley and a woman with blue eyes.

The brown-eyed Longley claims to be the son of the late manufacturer and his first wife, Mrs. Alice Adair Longley. He is asking for half of the Longley estate instead of the $700 annuity provided in the will.

“Blue-eyed parents can have brown-eyed children,” Prof. Horatio Hackett Newman of the University of Chicago testified on the complainant’s behalf.

“The discussion of the matter has resulted in the dissemination of incorrect ideas and doubtless has been disturbing to many families when they should not be disturbed.”

“The percentage of brown-eyed children born to supposedly blue-eyed parents runs from 5 to 20 per cent in tests.”

The professor, author of “Evolution, Eugenics and Genetics,” explained that blue eyes are not really blue if they have a tinge of grey, green or hazel.

LENT SERVICE

“I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, will never cease taking my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that is in it.” Mrs. S. A. Solomon, New Bern, N.C., Jan. 1931. “P. S.
